Plant Seizure
—by—
SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

Why does the government "seize" plant when it wants to break a strike? Is it just to put a legal base for its exercise of authority? Or, is it part of an obscure plot?

It is said that the constitutional vision against "involuntary servitude" prevents the government from compelling a man to work for the profit of another man, but that it can't strike against the government. Therefore, the government must "take over the plant" to keep its authority stick.

This sounds phony to me. The government "operation" of a seized plant is a flimsy fiction. The plant still private property, and is actually operated by the same personnel as before. But to maintain fiction, Mr. Truman has deeded a bill whereby the government confiscates profits (if any!) of a plant in its hands.

Let the workers be permitted to get their wages! They work because it is profitable to them to do so. The government does not pay anything for working. Why in one case and fowl in the other?

The government can compel a man to serve on a jury in a damage suit to the advantage of some little. It can compel him to spend his money in a witness in private suits. A sheriff can compel bystanders to help catch the robber. A private bank, or a fire chief, can put out a fire whether the building is the city hall or a private home.

So, it is ridiculous that our great government is helpless to act when it seizes something. Seizure is wholly unnecessary to the exercise of government power. The true limitation for this seizure business—unknown until a few years ago—lies elsewhere.

It is New Deal Socialist technique to "condition" the thinking of people to the idea of government management of private business. There can, I think, be no non-rebuttal of this. Some six years ago the National Resources Planning Board, headed by Frederic A. Mook, uncle of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, proposed "Extension and forms of joint private and governmental partnership, through use of mixed incorporations," i.e., companies whose board of directors include political appointees.

Congress refused to appropriate money to continue N. R. B., but its personnel found new jobs in government departments where their skills are being pushed, as moles under the sod and the dew, fighting the Marxist Day.

Maple Shade Couple Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lange, Maple avenue, Maple Shade, are today celebrating the 50th anniversary of their marriage. The couple is spending the day at a New Jersey seaside resort.

The Langes were married in Camden, N. J., on July 12, 1896, the bride being 18 and the groom 27. Mr. Lange was born in Kirkwood, N. J., and Mrs. Lange is a native of Philadelphia.

Mr. Lange was employed by Dill & Collins, Inc., Philadelphia, he being an officer at the plant of that paper manufacturing concern. For a period of 35 years he never lost a day on his own account, he states. The first time lost due to illness was last winter, when he suffered from rheumatism. Mr. Lange retired four weeks ago. But he is keeping busy, he having dug and planted his own garden. Caring for his vegetable plot, mowing the grass, and taking care of the chickens occupy his time. Mrs. Lange states she is glad to be able to do her own housework, she doing her own cooking and complete household tasks.

The Langes have three daughters and a son. Mrs. William Sturzer, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Joseph Murphy, and William Lange, all of Philadelphia. They have 10 grandchildren.

The following had their tonsils removed at Harriman Hospital this week: Anna Bono, Jefferson ave.; Dallas Adams, Schumacher Drive; Joseph Antonelli, Pear st.; Jean Graham, Radcliffe st.; Beatrice Harmon, West Bristol.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The Senate went into another night session in an effort to pass an OPA bill after having voted to exempt from Federal price controls rents in States having their own curbs. Earlier, it had rejected a proposal to permit a 15% rise in rents under Federal regulation during the next eight months. Buyers' strikes brought demonstrations in numerous cities across the country as prices continued to rise.

American educators must overcome the prejudices causing wars and lead the way to a world peace through international understanding. Mr. Truman told representatives of colleges and universities. General Eisenhower also emphasized the importance of intelligent leadership in attaining a peaceful world when he received an award as the Alumnus of the Year.

The United States and Britain served notice upon France and Russia that they would not wait longer for agreement on treating Germany as an economic entity, but would organize their own zones as separate units, which the other occupying powers were welcome to join. The Foreign Ministers' Council will meet again after the United Nations General Assembly to discuss German problems. It may adjourn tomorrow after touching upon Austria.

Nearly 300 important industrial properties will be turned over to Austria as trustee under President Truman's plan to relinquish all claim to German "assets."

Seventy-three Germans were convicted by a military court of having slaughtered American prisoners and Belgian civilians during the battle of the Bulge.

Nine participants in the Kleeau anti-Semitic pogrom were sentenced to be hanged and three others received jail sentences. Poland's Cardinal Hlond said the outbreak was not racial, but a result of a deteriorating situation "due to Jews who occupy leading positions in Poland's Government and endeavor to introduce a governmental structure which a majority of the people do not desire."

Russia is opposed to any autonomous authority for control of atomic energy, insisting that the Security Council retain control. Dr. Evatt of Australia was said to be ready to seek amendment of the United Nations Charter so that atomic matters, at least, would not be subject to veto. He is expected to endorse the American plan when

LABOR RELATIONS

It is said that a picture is worth a thousand words. Sometimes a few simple figures are worth a million.

The most unanswerable proof of the proposition that the Republican Party has been the best friend American labor ever had is to be found in statistics of the United States Department of Labor.

Figures are now available (page 720, May, 1946, issue of the Labor Department's "Monthly Labor Review") covering strikes in the United States for the 30-year period from 1916 to the end of 1945.

Of the various statistics, the ones best giving a picture of the extent of labor disputes is not the number of strikes, but the number of workers involved. The man-days idle would be still better; but these figures were kept only for part of the time.

Here are the figures on the number of men who went on strike during the thirty years:

1916	1,600,000	1931	342,000
1917	1,227,000	1932	324,000
1918	1,240,000	1933	1,168,000
1919	4,160,000	1934	1,467,000
1920	1,463,000	1935	1,117,000
1921	1,099,000	1936	789,000
1922	1,613,000	1937	1,861,000
1923	757,000	1938	688,000
1924	655,000	1939	1,171,000
1925	428,000	1940	577,000
1926	330,000	1941	2,363,000
1927	330,000	1942	840,000
1928	314,000	1943	1,981,000
1929	289,000	1944	2,116,000
1930	183,000	1945	3,467,000

All records probably will be broken by the current year, as the Labor Department's figures for the first four months of this year show a total of 2,235,000 strikers with only a third of the year elapsed.

Study of these figures for their political significance tells a story which is extremely interesting, and which has great bearing on the issues of the present political campaigns.

The thirty-year period breaks into three parts, so far as concerns national politics. During the first five years of it, the Democratic Party under President Wilson was

RESIDENTS CAN HELP KEEP RIVER CLEAN

Claim Much Rubbish Placed There By People Living Along Stream

MENACE TO HEALTH

Attention is called by those who are eager to have the Delaware River kept free of rubbish and debris, that residents along the beautiful and historic stream can be of great aid in a drive for a cleaner river.

It is argued that much of the rubbish and debris seen floating in the river is put there by those who either reside along the river or close to its shores. For this there is no excuse.

It has become a habit on the part of some to throw trash which accumulates about their property into the river. This may consist of hedge clippings, grass cuttings, tree limbs and in some instances, it is said, garbage is disposed of in this manner.

At this season of the year there are hundreds who reside in towns along the Delaware who delight in bathing in the river. Their delight would be greatly enhanced if the stream was cleaner.

Edward Dougherty, harbor master in this district, says that in his opinion the Delaware is about as clean at this time of year as it ever is. "I have had no complaints," he says.

Folks bathing or boating in this area report frequently seeing empty bottles, many of them broken, tossed on the banks or into the water near shore. This is a menace to bathers, bikers and in some instances to health.

Charge Clay Undermined Potsdam Agreement

Moscow—Pravda today repeated Soviet charges that Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay, deputy American commander in Germany, undermined the Potsdam agreement in suspending reparations shipments to Russia and other European nations. The Communist Party organ declared the suspension "infringes vital interests of countries which suffered from German aggression" and holds threat of "rejuvenation of Germany's industrial and military potential." It claimed that the Potsdam agreement called for economic independence of the various zones.

Final Day of Debate on British Loan Opens

Washington—The House today opened what it hopes will be its final day of debate on the proposed British loan with the administration leadership determined on a final vote Saturday.

The membership has debated the pros and cons of the proposed three billion, 750 million dollar advance for three days, and the outcome is so close as to be unpredictable.

Both proponents and opponents look to votes on amendments to be offered Saturday as indicators of their strength for adoption or defeat of the Senate-approved plan.

To Receive Bids on Bucks County Project

Harrisburg—The State Highways Department announced today that bids will be received at Harrisburg July 26 on eleven road improvement projects totaling 19.23 miles of traffic routes.

Italian Gov't Plans to Seize Duce's Property

Rome—The Italian Government moved today to seize property once owned by the late Benito Mussolini on the grounds that he "betrayed the fatherland and placed himself at the service of the invading Germans." An heir's hearing to determine the fate of Il Duce's "ridiculously small" estate has been set for July 20.

Newsprint Price Up $6.80 A Ton

MONTREAL, July 12—The major Canadian newsprint producers sent notices to their customers today announcing an immediate price rise of $6.80 a ton, and the entire industry was understood to be following suit.

The rise, to be added to the standard New York price of $67 a ton, was said to have been ordered to meet the loss which Canadian manufacturers faced as a result of last Friday's change in the value of the Canadian dollar. With the American and Canadian dollars now at par, the manufacturers will lose the 10 percent premium on the New York price, which they had been getting since September, 1939.

The newsprint producers all are expected to follow the same price policy. Two of the three largest manufacturers, the Abitibi Paper & Paper Co. and the Consolidated Paper Corp., put the $6.80 increase into effect today, and the third, the Canadian International Paper Co., was understood to be acting similarly.

This price rise affects all contractual sales, which account for the bulk of Canadian production, including that going to the United States and Great Britain.

Another rise of between $4 and $8 a ton is expected to come in the near future, depending on the ultimate fate of OPA in the U. S. and whether an American ceiling is restored.

ONE "Ad" Brings 40 Calls

"P-I-e-a-s-e take my 'ad' out," was the plea of Miss Alice Burns, Jefferson avenue, when she 'phoned the office of The Bristol Courier this morning. "I've had, by actual count, 40 calls, and they're still coming in."

Miss Burns advertised yesterday in the classified column, offering a three-piece, maple living-room suite for sale. One day was all that was needed before she called for help to call off the would-be buyers.

There is word of a "buyers' strike" under the auspices of organizations. . . . This is the first time we ever knew that anybody had to join a lodge to say "No!" to 99 cent butter.

And it doesn't take picket or parade to pass up 99 cent beef.

And if enough people do it prices will come down to what we will pay. . . . There is no sale.

But it has become old-fashioned for individuals to act as individuals. Whenever three men meet, they organize. . . . One becomes chairman and the other two, members of the grievance committee.

Then they start looking for the complaint department.

I don't know when we will reach the ultimate in organization but we moved a lot nearer to it when the UAW organizers organized as a larging unit.

You can't get much higher than that to the pinnacle of performance without slipping into the field of nuclear energy.

HOT WEATHER ARGUMENT

The country should be diverted, in the midst of so much serious-minded argument on political and economic questions, by the new capital argument as to whether it is permissible for a woman to enter the Senate galleries dressed in shorts.

Sergeant-at-arms Wall Doxey says no, though he admits women garbed in slacks. By contrast, Doorkeeper Ralph Roberts of the House, who apparently is not concerned about the dignity of his wing of the capitol, does not differentiate between the two costumes.

It will occur to many students of the human family that Mr.
Doxey has made his ruling on a tenuous theory, that of assuming that the dress of visitors has any bearing upon the dignity of the Senate, considered either as a body or as a meeting place.

The clothing chosen by the individual for wear at any place or function reflects, favorably or unfavorably, upon the wearer and not upon others—including Senators—who may be present.

There is suspicion that Mr.
Doxey's talk of the dignity of the Senate actually reflected his dissatisfaction with the mistaken judgment of some of his feminine visitors that one or the other of the garments named adorned their figures.

TOURISTS, STAY AWAY

When a braggart gets his "come uppance," there perhaps is not much point in adding one's own voice to those many others yelling "I told you so." But the temptation is very great.

A brief note on the press wires
the other day disclosed that Southern California, that mecca
in the sunshine which for so long has been urging tourists to come west, has reached the saturation point. Booster groups are rather quietly wishing that newcomers will henceforth stay away. Permanent population is spilling over the brim and travel through the area constantly increases. Southern California seems to have all
it can take for the present.

Thus begins, perhaps, a tragic pop to a gorgeous bubble in its day. Retirement after a long life of frugality and hard work generally meant going to California and settling down for the sunset years in a climate which, even allowing for exaggeration, furnished a lot of sunshine. Steadily the state filled with people bent on going to heaven on earth, as long as they couldn't get to the real place.

The day may be coming when the retiring midwesterner will just sit down in the living room
instead of heading the old family jalopy west and the anxious heaven-seeking tourist will say, "rocker, here I come."

Reuther says its terrible that prices should go up along with wages, but doesn't reveal what he's going to do about it.

Eddie Joseph, who refereed the Louis-Conn affair, says it wasn't even a good two-dollar fight,
which makes it unanimous.

in command. For twelve years the Republicans controlled, under Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.
For the remaining thirteen years, the Democratic Party again was in power, under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman.

How did labor fare under the party leadership in each of the three periods?

Under Woodrow Wilson, in the five years listed, the average of men on strike was 1,938,000 per year.

Under the Republicans, the 12-year average was 555,300.

After a return to Democratic control, the 13-year average was 1,508,000.

Still more sensational comparisons can be found.
For instance, part of the excessive labor dissention of the first two years of Republican Rule in 1921-22, was a hangover from the past. In the remaining ten years of the Republican supremacy, the average was only 395,200 per year—little more than a fifth of the last 13-year average.

As a matter of fact, this ten-year total for Republican presidents was less than in the single Democratic year of 1919, and only slightly higher than for 1945. At the current rate, it will be much less than for the present year.

The best Republican year was only a third of the total of the best Democratic year, and the worst Democratic year only a third of the worst Democratic year.

The political impact of these figures is to prove beyond dispute that labor and management have lived in greater harmony under Republican than under Democratic presidents—to argue conclusively that the Republican policies contain something which the Democratic methods do not, when it comes to obtaining peaceful cooperation on the labor front.

But the arguments in politics are much less important than those going into the field of economics and national prosperity.

The costs of strikes, as everyone knows, falls upon labor heaviest; but they form a serious drain upon national income as well as upon industrial earnings. Regardless of the "gains" of labor thus accomplished, the harm done national production can never be wiped out; and these so-called gains usually disappear in a series of price-rises due to accelerated inflation.

As a matter of fact, labor benefits infinitely more from whatever increases the buying power of its dollars than it ever can from merely increasing the number of dollars received each payday.

It is a fact almost beyond dispute that whatever reduces labor stoppages helps national economy, and whatever increases them retards the industrial resumption now so urgently needed.

Quite aside from political arguments, there are economic reasons going far beyond party lines which ought to compel a return to the type of national policy, as applies to labor issues, which this nation used during the mid-twenties.

As a practical matter, however, obviously this change in the field of national economic policy can be made only by a political change in the elections.

The one road to a resumption of orderly, just and peaceful handling of labor difficulties in the United States can be resumed only by the election of a strong Republican majority in the next House of Congress.

HOW DAVEY JONES WAS BORN

NEW YORK — (INS) — "Davy
Jones" doesn't mean much to either seafarer or landlubber, says Ships Magazine, but the "Davy Jones" derived from it does. It is said that this old sailing term for the mythi-cal ruler of the bottom of the sea comes from corruption of the words

"davy" — West Indian for ghost,
and "Jonah," a name long associated with a story of the sea.

IN FAMINE stricken countries, one other countries make such scenes

more infrequent. (International)

Is this what the fathers and mothers of the boys who died to end Hitlerism really want? I doubt it. But that the whole idea is taken out of the Nazi book is beyond question.

If you are interested in preserving freedom here in America, one of the best dollars you could ever spend would be to buy the book
"How Nazi Germany Has Controlled Business," published by the Brook-major decisions required for the conduct of business are imposed by government directives."

The German businessman is manipulat-

Total regulation has done a job

Explain Outboard Motorboat Racing

Henry Bowman, Cornwells
Heights, and L. Creighton Vande-grift, Edgington, two of the three partners of Neshaminy Aquadrome, were guests of the Rotary Club at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon, when Bowman explained the operation and plans for the new type of outboard motorboat racing being featured weekly at the Aquadrome water speedway, located in Edgington.

The boats make over 80 miles per hour on the quarter-mile water
speedway, according to Bowman,
with smaller type boats doing 60 and 65 miles per hour. Women drivers make 35 miles per hour.

"On the conventional type of water speedway, which is usually a two and a half mile course, the boats travel by singly, while here at the Aquadrome the boats are launched together, and the spectator has a better picture of the race for its entire course," Bowman pointed out.

The purse money, which is said to be the highest in the country for this type of racing, is $525 for each meet.

Plans for ground improvements which will permit water shows between the racing events were outlined by the speaker.

Stevens Scores Technical Knockout

Stevens, 147 lbs., who appeared more like a movie-star than a distributor of leather, showed very little markings as the result of 55 professional fights and his climb up the ladder to near the lightweight crown.

The Newark fighter carried each of the rounds fought by wide margins and in the fourth round dropped his guard completely and let Zaccano take two cracks at him. Zaccano was getting so weak from punishment that the blows did not even shake the Jersey boy.

Prior to the stopping of the bout, Stevens had floored Zaccano with a series of lefts and rights to the face. The Canadian took the count of nine and was still groggy when he arose to continue. He was also blinded by blood squirting from a bad cut over his left eye and his nose. But he pleaded with Referee "Pete" Panatolas not to stop the fight. But the arbiter called a halt as another blow would have ended the fight anyway.

Zaccano at the start of the fight appeared to be fast and kept rushing Stevens but the Newark lad did a lot of side-stepping and twice Zaccano missed and slipped to the floor. The first sign of Steven's hard-hitting was midway in the first when he stopped one of Zaccano's rushes with a right uppercut and later shook him with a well-aimed body blow.

The second session was Zaccano's best, although he did not carry the round. He did get in several stinging rights but they did not seem to stir Stevens who towards the finish of the round pummeled Patsy with several one-two's.

The beginning of the end for Zaccano was the third. After he missed a left, Stevens dug his right fist hard under the heart, Zaccano winced and the expression on his face changed. He quickly grabbed Stevens and held, but from then on was on the receiving end of most of the blows of the fight.

Zaccano also weighed 147 pounds. The semi-windup between "Bill" Gillam, Newark, and "Eddie" Wilson, Philadelphia, was a slow affair, with Gillam getting the decision of the officials. Gillam, at 209, spotted Wilson a pound.

Gillam did most of the fighting and hit the harder. In the third, Gillam put a "mouse" on Wilson's left eye which kept getting worse as the bout progressed. Gillam had five of the six rounds.

The only Newark fighter to lose was Nunzio Bisogno, who dropped the six-round verdict to "Jimmy" Spence, of Philadelphia. Spence won the bout despite a rally in the last two rounds by Bisogno.

In the first round, Spence sent the Jerseyite to the canvas with a left jab which caught Bisogno as he attempted to work his way inside to do some infighting.

Spence, who had long arms, used them to good advantage as he continually kept shoving it in Bisogno's face, and in the third round hit Bisogno with practically everything except the ring posts. Bisogno won the last two rounds.

Spence weighed 142 pounds while Bisogno came in at 140.

Both Bristol boys on the card were TKO victims, and both bouts were stopped in the second round.

"Hokey" Leighton, 142, put all he had in the first round of his bout with Ben Dischizer, 150, of Newark, and even went so far as to stagger the visiting fighter with a body blow, but that was as far as he got, as in the next round Dischizer floored him three times for counts of nine before the referee stopped the one-sided affair after 2:59 minutes of the round.

John Carleo, 160, was no match for Tami Dino, also 160, of Newark. Dino's experience and condition prevailed as he took the lead from the start, and in the second round Carleo twice before Referee Panatolas stopped it with Carleo out off his feet. The time of the round was 2:16 minutes.

It was announced that "Jimmy" Carter, one of the leading 126-pounders in the East, and who is a stable-mate of "Freddie" Archer, will headline the next show.

SAMSEL PROVES TO BE TOO MUCH FOR ST. ANN'S BATTERS

"Saints" Are Held To Four Hits; and 13 Batters Strike Out

PROCESSING IX WINS
Fur Workers Take Game by The Score of 7 to 3

For the second time this season, "Benny" Samsel proved that his hooks and fast ball are too much for the St. Ann's batters. On the Maple Beach field last evening, Samsel held the "Saints" to four hits and fanned 13 batters in pitching the Bristol Processing team to a 7-3 triumph.

The only other league hurler to inflict a defeat to the "Saints" was Joe Berry who gave them 3 hits in pitching the Hibs to a 9-2 win.

Samsel showed his cunning throwing to the fans in the final inning when St. Ann's loaded the bags with no one out and the Processing hurler fanned the side.

SPORTSMEN'S

BRIEFS

By JOE ELBERSON

More on bass fishing . . . the past week has seen plenty of fishing activity on both Silver Lake and the Canal with many nice fish taken. Largest bass reported to me (not verified, however) was said to be a 5½ pounder caught by a Philadelphia in the Canal near Tullytown.

One of the most popular plugs this season is the Jitterbug, a surface lure, which has been producing exceptionally well for the night fishermen.

Notes . . . when the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs met near Quakertown Monday evening delegates from eight associations were on hand. They included: Branch Valley, Bristol, Edgely, Great Swamp, Morrisville, New Hope, Palletown and Penn Manor.

Rabbits are showing up very well in all parts of the County, according to reports of the delegates. The pheasant picture was not as encouraging with many reports of spotty population. Quail were also reported in small numbers in some sections.

Harry Cole, State Fish Warden, said bass fishing has been generally good with the Perkiomen Creek producing a large number of heavy fish.

Action again . . . Buffalo Bill's rifle is going West. One of the famous "Winning of the West" Winchesters which Col. Wm. F. Cody used in making his world-famous reputation as a crackshot will be fired again by another great contemporary American marksman at the Buffalo Bill Centennial.

This historic rifle will be used from July 23rd to the 27th in a series of commemorative shooting exhibitions by Herb Parsons during the annual Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo which this year will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the birth of America's greatest hunter, scout and plainsman who graduated from an express rider to the best known marksman of his day.

The rifle, known to the West's early plainsmen as the Model 73, was one of the most significant developments of its time. It combined the lever-action method of rapid fire and the center fire cartridge.

Cody established a wide reputation for courage, daring and resourcefulness as an express rider through country filled with hostile Indians, but he secured his name as a buffalo hunter. His biggest season's kill was 4,862 and on his biggest day he took 69 buffalo.

Too close for comfort . . . when Fred VanScliver, Linden street, hooked into, and landed a big bass at the Lake Tuesday afternoon it appeared that it would "top" the bass caught by his son, John, Swain street. Although it was a beautiful fish the scales told the story: John's fish weighed 4 pounds, 9½ ounces. Dad had to be satisfied with a 3 pound, 15 ounce bass! Both bass were taken on live bait.

Plenty of fishermen but few fish . . . Ralph Ratcliffe and I fished the Neshaminy Creek at Rushland Sunday afternoon for smallmouth bass. After a considerable time we had just two bass. Dozens of other anglers were enjoying about the same success.

ROSE POINT—(INS)—Robert A. once preached in hopes of ending a Blair, blind former pastor of the 24-year streak of bad luck. His wife Rose Point Reformed Presbyterian died in 1922, his two sons were Church, has returned to the tiny killed in the war and he lost his Lawrence County village where he eyesight.
